Talks on teacher pay dispute

TALKS that could end a ban on sports and extra-curricular activities in Catholic schools will take place today.

The Queensland Independent Education Union will meet with Catholic Education employers today over a revised pay offer for teachers.

Catholic teachers have already held one strike this year over wages, calling for more money in their most senior rank.

An indefinite ban on school sports and extra-curricular activities was suspended just before the Easter holidays in the spirit of the new offer.

Dozens of schools have been affected by the ban.
